

COUNTY MISSION GROUP REELECTS THREE OFFICERS

The annual election of officers was conducted, reports of committee heads were received, an address was heard by a furloughed missionary from India and other convention matters were handled at the afternoon and evening sessions of the annual meeting of the Adams county conference of the Women's Missionary society of the United Lutheran church, Tuesday, in Trinity Lutheran church at Arendtsville. The conference theme was "Let Your Light Shine."

At the annual business session former officers were re-elected with the exception of Mrs. Harold Crouse, York, who had been elected secretary a year ago while her husband served a pastorate in McSherrystown. Her removal to York, where the Rev. Mr. Crouse now preaches, made her ineligible to continue in office. Her successor is Mrs. George H. Berkheimer, Arendtsville. Mrs. Henry W. Sternat, Biglerville, was re-elected president and Mrs. O. C. Dean, Hanover, was continued as vice-president. Miss Maude White-leather, Hanover street, was elected treasurer of the conference for another year.

Reports on Convention

The afternoon meeting convened at 1:30 o'clock when the devotions were conducted by Mrs. Kenneth James, New Chester, and greetings were extended to the women in attendance by Mrs. Berkheimer, wife of the pastor of the host church. Mrs. John S. Tome, Hanover, responded.

Mrs. H. D. Hoover, Gettysburg, a member of the executive board of the Women's Missionary society of the United Lutheran church, reported on the highlights of the recent Buffalo convention. Election of officers followed. Mrs. Erle Diehl, Hanover, had been appointed chairman of the nominating committee and Mrs. Herbert Schmidt, Mt. Joy, headed the committee on resolutions. Mrs. Serf, East Berlin, was chairman of the committee on the time and place of the next meeting.

Reports were received from committees on box and lace work, education and magazine.

Mrs. H. B. Burkholder, Greencastle, president of a Cumberland Valley conference of the Missionary society attended the meeting. Mrs. Clarence Neal, Chambersburg, synodical secretary of life membership societies and memorials, reported. Mrs. Mervin U. Bream, North Stratton, is the conference officer.

Special vocal selections were given by Mrs. W. E. Wolf and Mrs. S. A. Skinner.

165 Women Present

Miss Frances Dyingier, executive secretary of the Inner Mission board, Washington, D. C., presented the cause of inner missions to the conference.

The evening meal was served the 165 women in attendance by students of the Arendtsville Vocational high school at the school building.

The evening session opened at 7:30 o'clock with the church well filled. The Rev. George H. Berkheimer, pastor of the host church, conducted the worship service. The principal address was delivered by Miss Lottie Martin, a missionary nurse on furlough after 14 years of service in India, on the subject "The Moslem World." The church choir presented an anthem.

Installation of officers and a recognition service for the Life Membership societies of the conference were combined in a pageant that combined music, dialogue and ceremonial. Mrs. Harvey D. Hoover was in charge of the installation while the Life Membership societies were presented by Mrs. Bream. Mrs. Charles L. Yost, Biglerville, sang as solo numbers: "Lead Kindly Light" and "The Light of the World Is Jesus." Mrs. Berkheimer sang "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee."

During the service the Rev. and Mrs. Louis Bowers, Gettysburg, who recently were commissioned as missionaries to China, were presented.

Miss Emeline Bowman, Hanover, president of the young women's societies of the West Pennsylvania synod, reported on the recent young women's congress at Buffalo.

The meeting adjourned without selecting the place of the next conference.

Oil Stove Explodes In Fairfield Home

The Fairfield fire company was called out at 9:30 o'clock this morning to extinguish a blaze at the Frank Wisler property, Main street, Fairfield, tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Neely.

An exploding oil stove in the kitchen was the cause of the fire which did little damage other than blackening kitchen furniture. Neighbors aided in extinguishing the fire by throwing wet ground upon the flames.

Chemicals were used by the firemen who found the fire under control upon their arrival.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS TO CONVENE NOV. 15

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt, ordering a special session of Congress November 15, instituted a campaign today to enact by Christmas, if possible, the bulk of his legislative program sidetracked in the last session.

Administration officials expressed hope for swift congressional approval of five measures outlined by the Chief Executive Tuesday night in his tenth "fireside chat":

1. Crop production control to "build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable."

2. Wage and hour standards to "make millions of our lowest-paid workers actual buyers of billions of dollars of industrial and farm products."

3. Regional planning to conserve natural resources, prevent floods and produce electric power for general use.

4. Government reorganization to provide "twentieth century machinery" to make the "democratic process work more efficiently."

5. Stronger anti-trust laws in furtherance of "a low price policy which encourages the widest possible consumption."

One Recommendation Is New

The proposals foreshadowed bitter and perhaps prolonged controversy. The first four were left-overs from the session which ended in August, but the anti-monopoly recommendation was new.

Mr. Roosevelt characterized the program as one which the American people need immediately to provide prosperity.

"The kind of prosperity we want," he said, "is the sound and permanent kind which is not built up."

509 COUNTIANS GET HELP FROM MOTHERS' BOARD

With five of the six members of the Mothers' Assistance Board of Adams county in attendance the October meeting of that group was in session today at the court house. Mrs. John C. Bream presided over the morning and afternoon sessions.

The board considered applications of several mothers seeking aid from the board and approved three for addition to the active list for the month of November. During October, 31 mothers are receiving aid from the county board. The amount to be paid them will total $1,217.90. Mrs. Rosalie Raffensperger, acting executive secretary of the board, stated.

The grant being received this month by the board and grants now being paid to three other mothers will be raised in accordance with action of the trustees this morning. Varying needs and conditions in the homes receiving aid account for the alterations in the amounts given, it was stated.

The meeting this morning opened with a business session, when current matters were handled and then mothers' applications were taken up together with case studies. This afternoon blind pensions and old age pensions were being considered.

Mrs. Raffensperger reported that this month there are 55 blind countians receiving a total of $1,350 in accordance with previous action of the board. An inspirational address Friday night by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Washington, will close the convention.

The smoldering ruins were said still to be held by Government forces, but elsewhere the Insurgents were slowly advancing, with many losses in hand to hand fighting.

AUTO DEATHS IN PA. EXCEED 2,000

(Copyright 1937, By Associated Press) Harrisburg, Oct. 12.—Automobile deaths in Pennsylvania hit the 2,000 mark for the year today and from one end of the state to the other rolled the cry:

"This massacre must stop!" The Department of Revenue reported accidents over last week-end, brought the year's total to more than 2,000 killed and 45,621 injured.

Civic organizations joined with Governor George H. Earle in asking why "these figures of slaughter must continually mount in a country that is at peace with the world."

Earle challenged the motorists—some 2,250,000—to "end the massacre on our highways."

He said millions had been spent to improve the roads. The Pennsylvania motor police, equipped with white "ghost" cars to slow down traffic or speed it up as fit the situation, was bearing down with increased vigilance. The safety organizations, including the state, hit their educational programs harder than ever in 1937.

Yet, the Department of Revenue's figures showed today that 1937 was ahead of 1936. Last year, the 2,000 mark was reached in December.

'Prophets' Begin Goosebone Quest to Forecast Weather

Harrisburg, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Pennsylvania goosebone prophet has begun his annual quest for the No. 1 goose.

Scouting predictions by various other forecasters that a "hard" winter is in store, the gooseboner is scanning his flock, and within the next few days he'll select the goose that is to surrender the 1937 weather bone.

From then on, the goose will be fed more than the others and it will get special attention. Meantime, the grindstone will be oiled, and on the eve of Thanksgiving the goose will lose its head.

After the Thanksgiving dinner, a goose bone will be tied to the rafters in the attic, or put on a shelf in the cellar.

A few weeks later, the bone will be brought to light, and the Gooseboner will break his silence.

PICKET LINES ARE CONTINUED

At the call of Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmith, Chief of Police Lloyd E. Wisler, Sheriff B. E. Bixler, Charles McKenrick, president of the local union of the C. I. O., and other local union officers conferred this morning in the fire engine house, East Middle street, on picketing practices at the three local furniture plants where several hundred workers are entering the third day of their strike for higher pay and better working conditions.

Following the conference which had been suggested by members of the borough safety committee at a session Tuesday evening, Burgess Stallsmith said that union officers had agreed to instruct their pickets to "keep moving, restrict their operations to the factory areas and not interfere with workmen on their way to and from their duties."

Picket lines moved about the factories this morning, at noon and were promised for this evening when shifts change. McKenrick said the strike program is to continue while they await the arrival of a mediator from the national labor relations board who may arrange for a conference between the management and the strikers.

Workmen in the shops and the management report steadily growing numbers of men in the three plants while McKenrick said fewer men reported for work this morning than Tuesday and that some of them did not pass picket lines.

The three plants remained in operation today. John W. Myers, C. I. O. organizer from Philadelphia who has led the strikers here, went to Philadelphia Tuesday evening and then to Atlantic City where he is attending a national gathering of C. I. O. workers and representatives of their organizations.

Roy Mickley Hurts Back; Fell From Tree

Roy A. Mickley, 49, Orrtanna R. 1, was severely injured Monday evening when he fell out of a tree at his home while attempting to catch chickens roosting in the branches. Shortly after dusk Mr. Mickley and his son, Curvin, attempted to catch the chickens, a limb breaking when the former climbed the tree.

He was admitted to the Annie M. Warner hospital in the ambulance this morning. X-ray pictures taken this morning suggested a possible fracture of the back and more X-rays will be taken to determine the extent of the injury.

If the bone is dark, an old-fashioned winter is in store; if it's light, spring will force winter into early retirement.

There are some parts of the state where the theory is reversed—a dark bone meaning a mild winter, and a light bone meaning prolonged blizzards, sneezing, frozen pumps, burst water pipes and such things.

Most of the gooseboners insist the goose should weigh at least 12 pounds. They recalled the disastrous prophecy of a Lehigh county farmer a few years ago. His goose was too light.

Well, he took a look at the bone, telephoned the newspapers and announced:

"Spring is here!"

The next day the whole eastern seaboard was hit by a blizzard and he was snowbound for three weeks.

WARNS HUNTERS OF CHANGES IN LAWS; GAME IS MORE PLentiful

Small game hunters in Adams county next month will have much better opportunity to bring home a few rabbits or squirrels or feathered game this year than last, it was indicated today by the Adams county game protector.

Questioned about the small game population in Adams county, R. C. Anderson described the number of rabbits and squirrels as "very satisfactory" and reported many more ringneck pheasants and quail in most parts of the county than last year, when small game reached a low ebb due to the rigors of preceding hard winters. The increase in small game is general over the county and this section of the state, he said.

Anderson estimated the deer population of Adams county this fall as about equal to that of last year. Estimates of the game population by the game protector were coupled with warnings that new and former provisions of the state hunting and trapping laws are going to be strictly enforced.

Fines Provided

The game protector stated that he has received orders that are to be rigidly followed to the effect that fines of $1 and the costs are to be levied against hunters who fail to sign their hunter's certificate and that a $2 fine and the costs will be assessed against every hunter who fails to make a report to the state Game commission by the first of the year on the amount of game he has killed. The stubs attached to the hunter's certificate are to be used for that purpose, Anderson said, and a close check will be made to make sure that a stub is returned for every license issued.

The new law provides, Anderson pointed out, that the game protectors are given new powers in enforcing the safety or so-called civil sections of the state game code which provide penalties for mutilating or carrying off trespass or other warning signs, assaulting land owners, injuring livestock, failing to render assistance in the field in case of accident or injury of another hunter and for being found under the influence of intoxicating liquor while hunting. Even though no prosecution is brought or conviction secured for any of these offenses, hunters so accused may have their licenses revoked for a period of from one to four years.

Hunting Season Opens Nov. 1

It was pointed out that a $50 penalty is provided for every person convicted of shooting protected game from an automobile along the highway. It is illegal also to use automobiles to drive or chase game from cover, it was pointed out.

Listing other "don'ts" for county hunters and trappers, the game protector warned against using lights in hunting skunks at night. He added that there is no provision in the law which makes it legal for hunters to use dogs for hunting skunks.

Raccoons may not be trapped in Adams county, but may be hunted with dogs.

The 1937 hunting season opens at 9 o'clock on the morning of November 1 and the trapping of fur-bearing animals becomes legal on November 15.

E. Donald Scott Heads Presbyterian S. S.

E. Donald Scott, an elder in the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, was elected general superintendent of the church Sunday school at a meeting of the officers and teachers of the school Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Ruth A. McIlhenny, 129 West Lincoln avenue. About 25 persons attended the meeting, the regular October session of the association. Mr. Scott presided. The devotions were conducted by Miss Margaret Benson.

Mrs. Paul Ketterman was chosen recording secretary by the group and Miss Marie Pittenburt was named as an assistant to Miss Marion Manahan, secretary of the Sunday school. John Stambaugh, Miss Emily Wible and Miss Evelyn Conti were elected to teaching positions in the school.

It was decided that the next meeting of the officers and teachers shall follow a covered dish supper in the social rooms of the church. The business meeting will be conducted after the meal which is to be served at 6:30 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, November 9.

H. S. JUNIORS ELECT

James Sneeringer has been elected president of the Junior class at Gettysburg high school. Other officers for the year are: Vice-president, Dick Thomas; secretary, Eleanor Hanawalt, and treasurer, Maurice Grew.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS TO CONVENE NOV. 15

temporarily at the expense of any session or group."

His speech followed by only five hours his dramatic announcement at a three-minute press conference that he was calling the first special session since the one he summoned during the 1933 bank holiday.

The broad program outlined by the President immediately raised the question of whether Congress would return more in the mood to follow his leadership than it was last summer.

Does Not Mention Court

There was no mention in Mr. Roosevelt's speech of his court reorganization program which upset the legislative machinery in the regular 1937 session. He apparently was referring to Supreme Court reversals, however, when he said the people had been "checked" in efforts by control procedure and secure wage-hour standards.

Although some members of Congress said they saw no need for a special session, such administration leaders as Speaker Bankhead (D., Ala.) said the President had exercised "good judgment."

Chairman O'Connor (D., N. Y.) of the House rules committee, which blocked the wage-hour bill in the last session, forecast it would be brought to the house floor swiftly. The crop control bill, however, will have the right-of-way under a resolution adopted in August.

There were indications that two other issues might create time-consuming debate during the session—the former Ku Klux Klan connections of Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black and the President's foreign policy.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently sought in his speech to allay criticism of his newly aggressive policy toward Japanese invasion of China. He emphasized that American participation in the nine-power treaty conference would be to seek by agreement a solution of the conflict.

"And the kind of peace we want," he said, "is the sound and permanent kind, which is built on the co-operative search for peace by all the nations which want peace."

Discussing his call for the special session, the President said it would enable Congress to avoid a lengthy session next year during the pre-election campaign. Ordinarily Congress would not meet until January 3.

"I know," he added, "that many enemies of democracy will say that it is bad for business, bad for the tranquility of the country, to have a special session—even one beginning only six weeks before the regular session."

"But I have never had sympathy with the point of view that a session of the Congress is an unfortunate intrusion of what they call 'politics' into our national affairs. Those who do not like democracy want to keep legislators at home."

After the 30-minute speech, Mr. Roosevelt left for a week's visit to his family home at Hyde Park, New York. He agreed to go to nearby Poughkeepsie today to lay the cornerstone of a new postoffice.

A. F. of L. Rejects C. I. O. Parley Bid

Mrs. Mark K. Eckert is attending a meeting of the executive board of the state federation of Pennsylvania women in Harrisburg. Mrs. Eckert is secretary of the state organization.

Mrs. W. D. Hartshorne, North Washington street, will return this evening from a visit with her sister, Miss Gertrude Lison, of Shipman, Virginia. Professor Hartshorne motored to Sandy Springs, Maryland, today to meet his wife.

Mrs. J. P. Dalbey, Baltimore street, and her house guest, Mrs. Frank Allen, Ottawa, Canada, were visitors in York, Monday.

Mrs. L. L. Lampert, Broadway, will open a series of broadcasts on "Alaska" at a nearby station Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The series will continue for an indefinite period at the same time each Monday.

Mrs. Robert C. Miller and daughter, Mrs. William G. Weaver, have issued invitations to a luncheon-bridge Friday, October 22, at Graef-fenburg inn.

The Maude Miller Bible class of St. James Sunday school, taught by Mrs. Spencer W. Aungst, held a Halloween masquerade social Tuesday evening at the church. The committee in charge included Mrs. Howard Sheffer, Mrs. Scott L. Smith, Mrs. Charles M. Sheely, Miss Bess Shriver and Mrs. J. Clare Routsong.

ROUTINE BUSINESS

Adams county commissioners conducted their weekly session at the court house today. The meeting was postponed from Tuesday because the court house was closed in observance of Columbus Day. Members of the board and their clerk said that only routine business was conducted. President S. Luther Baltzley presided, with all members in attendance.

Commercial cars and motorcycles included, there are 14 vehicles for every mile of road in the United Kingdom. In the United States there is one automobile for each eight miles of road.

BELGIUM AND REICH AGREE ON NON-AGGRESSION

Berlin, Oct. 13 (AP)—Germany concluded a non-aggression agreement with Belgium today. The accord was reached in an exchange of notes between German Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath and Belgian Minister Jacques Davignon at the Berlin foreign office.

The German note said that inasmuch as a new agreement replacing the Locarno security pact might take a long time, the Reich wished to define its attitude toward Belgium without delay.

"Germany is determined under no circumstances to infringe on the inviolability and integrity of Belgium and to respect at all times Belgian territory except of course if Belgium should co-operate in any warlike operations against Germany," the Reich's note elaborated.

"The German government, like the British and French, is ready to assist Belgium should it be attacked or invaded."

The Belgian note briefly expressed the Brussels government's "profound satisfaction" and thanks for Germany's assurances.

The diplomatic German note to Belgium, an official commentator said, shows the world Germany solemnly agrees to respect the inviolability and integrity of its western neighbor.

"By this unselfish and generous step," the commentator said, "the Reich government can claim to have furnished an additional contribution to securing the peace of Europe."

Germany's action was an exception to the rule, from a diplomatic standpoint, in that the declaration is unilateral, binding Germany but not Belgium.

Missent Letter Blamed for Death Of Consul General

Beirut, Syria, Oct. 13 (AP)—The slaying of Consul General James Theodore Marriner was attributed today to a tragic mistake—a letter going astray in the mails.

The United States consular official was shot Tuesday by an Armenian, Meguerdich Karayan, who, police said, gave as his reason that he felt "insulted" because his request for a passport visa was refused.

Actually, it developed that the consulate general had granted Karayan a visa but the letter informing him of the fact was never delivered, the Armenian having changed addresses.

The body of Marriner will be sent to his mother in the United States after a memorial service today at the American church of Beirut.

Alfred Tabet, Lebanese attorney general, said Karayan, 29, returned to Syria from the United States in 1934 to live at Aleppo.

Karayan will be tried by a special court next week. Tabet said the Armenian's father, John Karayan, lives in Boston, Massachusetts.

WEDDING

Krepps—Schmidt

Miss Rebecca M. Schmidt, daughter of Mrs. Catherine E. Schmidt, 227 York street, Hanover, and Earl G. Krepps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ignatius Krepps, McSherrystown, were united in marriage at a nuptial mass Tuesday morning in St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown. The Rev. Leonard Randello officiated.

They were attended by Gerald and Mildred Krepps, children of the bridegroom, served the mass.

The wedding marches by Mendelssohn and from Lohengrin by Wagner were played as processional and recessional respectively.

The couple will reside in McSherrystown.

Hair Expert Says 98 Per Cent Of All Women Have Crooked Noses

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Ninety-eight per cent of all women have a crooked nose, said Emile F. Martin today—a nose that "lists" slightly either to right or left.

So, explained Martin, who is president of the New York State Hairdressers' association, "an optical illusion" is required to make the feminine nose look straight.

The trick, he said, is to part the hair adeptly. If the nose veers to the right, have the part on the right by all means, sloping back to center.

Asked if men's noses have the same imperfection, Martin pondered, and said he didn't know. "I've never studied men much."

The new styles in women's hair-dress?

Martin, presiding at the association's annual convention, brightened. "False hair!" he exclaimed, "worn as an ornament. A curl, two curls or a braid of false hair dyed to match a woman's gown and tucked in her own hair."

"It will take the country by storm."

Will it be hard to get?

"Oh, no," said Martin jubilantly.

JAPS LOSE 3,000 MEN IN ATTACK NEAR SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Oct. 13 (AP)—A Chinese spokesman declared today that Japanese forces had lost more than 3,000 dead and wounded in a disastrous attempt to crash the Chinese lines across Wentsoaping creek into Tazang, four miles northwest of the international settlement.

The Japanese army used 15,000 men in its desperate thrust. One Japanese flying column pushed ahead of the main body three miles to the outskirts of Tazang where a murderous machine gun hand grenade fire forced it to retire to the original position.

Tazang is the most strongly defended town on the Chinese battle line. Its capture by the Japanese might force the Chinese troops to withdraw from the hotly-contested Chapei sector in order to escape being flanked and surrounded from the west.

Despite withering fire from land, sea and air the Chinese clung to their lines on all other fronts in the Shanghai district.

While Japanese planes resumed dropping bombs on Chapei a few yards outside the international settlement boundary, the echo of their staccato machine-gunning of two British motor cars late Tuesday was creating more international consternation.

Although no official statements had been made it was learned that the attack might have British, Italian and Russian repercussions since citizens of those nations were passengers in the automobiles.

The passengers were understood to be: Flight Lieutenant S. S. Murray, assistant British air attaché; Capt. W. L. Shinn, British, of the China Navigation company; M. Braham, British; Lieut.-Francesco Rebezz, of the Italian navy; M. Shavov, secretary to the Soviet military attaché, and an unnamed Russian woman.

The Japanese planes attacked the foreign car near Minghong, 16 miles from Shanghai, while they were en route from the Chinese capital at Nanking.

A Russian driver for the American-owned Bills Motor company, D. E. Pittinghoff, said he was driving a flagless pilot car containing Rebezz, Braham and a Chinese newspaperman a half a mile ahead of the other two cars and was not attacked.

Both Pittinghoff and Shinn declared they could not see how the Japanese could have mistaken cars since Union Jacks were painted on top of the two attacked. Pittinghoff asserted he had mapped the route and details of the expedition for the British authorities to notify the Japanese.

The British embassy maintained that the Japanese had been informed of the trip. Japanese asserted that, while the Japanese navy was informed that a party of Britons was coming to Shanghai, the army was not advised and for that reason the fliers were uninformed.

FROM GOLDEN FLEECE TO FARMLAND

Moscow (AP)—The hot, wooded swamp where Jason of Greek mythology went in search of the golden fleece is being reclaimed for subtropical agriculture.

Kolkhida, known to the ancients at Colchis, covers 550,000 acres on the Georgian shores of the Black sea. Within five years, soviet engineers have drained 40,000 acres and turned them over to collective farmers. Poti, a seaport, is the chief city.

By means of embankments and a network of drainage canals, 113,000 acres are to be reclaimed by 1940 for 5,000 peasant families to raise tea, tangerines, lemons and oranges. Reclamation of 150,000 acres more is planned after 1940.

BULLETS SEEK INITIAL WIN

Still gunning for their first grid-iron victory of the season, the Gettysburg college Bullets will entertain the Drexel Dragons here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in a game which will mark the locals' debut in the Eastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Conference race.

At present Drexel and Dickinson are leading the conference race having scored victories over Franklin and Marshall and Ursinus, respectively.

The Dragons will come here an undefeated outfit boasting a strong offense. Drexel crushed Susquehanna 21-0 in the opening game of the season and last Saturday upset F. and M. with a fourth period two-touchdown rally, 26-25. Williams and Lignell have borne the brunt of the Drexel attacks in both games and in stopping this pair the Bullets are certain to have a full afternoon in store for them.

So far this season the Bullets have been unable to display any consistent offensive attack. At Penn State the locals were simply overpowered and last week a steady rain slowed up play. Against Drexel the Bullets are hoping to be able to open up their entire repertoire of plays and prove conclusively that they are to be reckoned with in the fight for the conference title.

Light workouts have prevailed on the Orange and Blue practice field this week but a long scrimmage was scheduled for this afternoon.

Visitors Sit In Wally's Tub To Boost Luck

Baltimore Oct. 13 (AP)—Maybe it works and maybe not but Mrs. W. W. Matthews said most of the visitors to Wallis Warfield's former home sit in the bathtub for luck.

Mrs. Matthews "hostess" at the little house on Biddle street, explained an English woman started the practice shortly after the house opened as a museum. "She said it was good luck to sit in the tubs of famous women," Mrs. Matthews related. "She said she had sat in lots of famous tubs all over Europe—Cleopatra's and Marie Antoinette's. She was determined to get into the tub and she did."

The tub doesn't look like a talisman—it's just an ordinary white bathtub on legs, the sort found in lots of old houses. It doesn't match the flashing facsimiles of the five crowns Edward, King of England, gave up to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

Mrs. Matthews said she doesn't know whether to believe all that about the tub, but her visitors do. "Nine out of ten of them get into it," she said, "men, women and children. They get me to take their pictures. One bride and bridegroom got in, hugged, and handed me the camera."

She didn't know whether it made any difference in the luck if the tubs were full or empty.

But so far, she was very positive, they've all chosen it empty.

PUNTS AND PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

Philadelphia — Instead of praise from the coach for making a good tackle, Frank Loughney, sophomore guard at LaSalle, has drawn indefinite suspension from Coach Marty Brill. The reason is that Loughney made the tackle when he was supposed to be on the bench with an injured ankle during LaSalle's game with Catholic university. He rushed out and downed Vic Sochon and his team drew a penalty for having a twelfth man in action.

South Bend, Ind.—The Irish are holding their own, at least, at Notre Dame. Halfback Jack McCarthy was benched Tuesday when Coach Elmer Layden shook up his team and Louie Zontini got the job. But at the same time Sweeney replaced Leonard Skoglund at end.

New York.—It probably would be too much to expect another scoreless tie between Fordham and Pitt Saturday after two straight games between them without a point, but off the records there's a good chance the Rams won't be scored on. Starting with their undefeated 1929 team, when no rival made a touchdown, they have blanked 36 opponents in 63 games. Counting only the 51 major contests, the tally stands at 23 white-washes.

Champaign, Ill. — Minus Lowell Spurgeon, one of their main offensive threats who is resting a pair of weak ankles, the Illinois football players have been working on defense tactics the last two days. According to the results it should be the other way. They didn't let either De Paul or Notre Dame score on them the last two Saturdays, neither did they score themselves.

Princeton, N. J.—Jack White, who is considered Princeton's best ball carrier, has taken on the job of calling signals before the Chicago game and so far he looks pretty good at it. He called them but didn't take any other part in the action during a scrimmage between the varsity and second team Tuesday and the regulars scored three touchdowns.

MAJESTIC THEATRE
An airplane that virtually flies itself, a newspaper editor who unwittingly scoops himself, and a swindler who unconsciously cheats himself, are some of the amazing ingredients that contribute to the fun in Joe E. Brown's latest laugh-vehicle, "Riding on Air," coming to the Majestic theatre on Thursday.

As Elmer Lane, a small town newspaper editor, Joe E. Brown proves himself a sensational news sleuth—for his rival papers—but when it comes to capturing a band of air smugglers with the use of an airplane controlled by a projected radio beam, he startles the world and baffles a would-be embezzler.

RADIO MAY RUN CLASSROOMS IN YEARS TO COME

It's 1947. Forty children are in a classroom, scribbling busily on arithmetic problems. The teacher is scribbling too. Now and then all pause, listen, then scribble some more.

Twenty blocks away, 40 more children are working on the same problems. In a suburb of the city, still more children are busy at the same work.

And it's all because of radio. The arithmetic lesson is being dictated over the air to all schools at the same time.

Chicago Sets Example
Maybe it won't even take 10 years for this to come about, asserts Frank Ernest Hill, of the Adult Education Association, who has just completed a study of radio in education.

In fact, some schools, mainly those in Rochester, New York and Cleveland already have introduced tentatively—the broadcasting of classroom problems by radio. And alert Chicago school principals, during the recent infantile paralysis outbreak, arranged for stay-at-home children to keep up their work with daily broadcasts.

So far, however, radio classroom work has been a novelty. Children have heard all kinds of supplemental work over the air, mainly orchestral programs and speakers.

"Packed With Dynamite"
But, says Mr. Hill, the 1947 air curriculum will include fundamental instruction as well as supplemental work.

"Education by radio is just packed with dynamite," he exclaimed enthusiastically upon his return from a national tour of broadcasting stations. "Cleveland has already petitioned the federal communications commission to set aside certain frequencies for their schools' use."

School programs of the future will be broadcast over short wave frequencies from a central point, he says, because commercial stations cannot give enough time to schools. The new field will not reduce the number of teachers by any means, Mr. Hill hastens to add. Even more may be needed, since radio requires teachers who have pleasing voices as well as specialized knowledge.

Teachers still will be needed in classrooms, to check up on students' work, since the pupils can't talk back to the radio.

Books may be displaced to some extent, Mr. Hill thinks. But he says that is not a serious matter. Spelling is spelling, whether you learn it from a book or from the air waves. And reference books are always needed.

Will this new educational method make teachers lazy? No, answers Mr. Hill, they will have to work harder. They will have to do the problems with their pupils. No relaxation for them when the radio is turned on.

Timely Reminders for Adams County Farmers From State College Specialists.

The roots of a rye cover crop penetrate the garden soil thoroughly and deeply, even when the crop is turned under very early in the spring. These absorb unused nutrients and save them for the next year's vegetable crops.

Prevent Fruit Bruising
Every effort should be made to avoid bruising apples in the harvesting, packing, and storing operations. Fruit growers can save considerable loss by insisting upon careful handling all along the line, fruit specialists remind.

Produce Good Capons
Some excellent capons are produced by cross-breeding, report poultrymen. Popular crosses include Barred Rock—Rhode Island Red or New Hampshire, White Wyandotte—White Rock, Light Brahma—Plymouth Rock, and Dark Cornish—New Hampshire.

Evergreens Are Popular
Many home owners like evergreens for foundation plantings around the house, say ornamental horticulturists. The use of pines, firs, and spruces, however, should be discouraged because they tend to outgrow their position rather quickly.

Prevent Soil Erosion
When grain is sown on the contour lines of a hillside the run-off of water is checked and soil erosion controlled. Agronomists say that this is a simple, inexpensive practice that any farmer can use.

Improve Egg Flock
Unprofitable ewes should be culled out of the farm flock. Good

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg
Times the files reveal.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Real Lillian Russell Here: Mrs. Lillian Russell Moore said this morning at the Hotel Gettysburg that after riding over the turnpike from York, she would devote half of the proceeds from a play she is writing about Gettysburg to the repair of the York road.

When the Times representative explained to Mrs. Moore that the road was designated by the State Highway department for reconstruction under the Sproul road bill and that work on a portion of it had already been completed she said "at any rate I am willing to do anything I can to relieve the actual suffering other automobilists must endure who travel this way. I have travelled all over the United States and many parts of Europe, but never encountered worse roads than this one."

Invitations Issued: Invitations have been sent out for the wedding of Miss Ruth Augusta Clutz and Mr. Mark Kurtz Eckert which will take place at the home of Miss Kurtz on Springs avenue at noon Wednesday, October 23.

Judge and Mrs. S. McC. Swope have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Stair Swope and Mr. John deKaib Keith, at their home, 208 Baltimore street, on October 26, at 6:30 in the evening.

Excursion: Eighty-six people went to Baltimore on this morning's excursion. A considerable portion of this number were people from the country and students from college. Among those from town who went were Dr. J. W. Tudor, John M. Blocher, Mrs. Frank Althoff, Miss Annie Althoff, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mitten, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Hudson, Miss Elizabeth Van Cleave, Miss Mary Swope, Mrs. Elmer Musselman, Miss Chritzman, Mrs. Harry Heagy, Miss Nellie Culp, Mrs. Swartz, Miss Verna Swartz, Mrs. William Wentz, Miss Daisy Wentz, William Brinkerhoff, Charles Beatty and Mrs. Guy Bruner. The excursion was run by St. Joseph's Beneficial Society of Baltimore.

Town to Maintain the Playground: The question of the maintenance and care of the public playground which has been promised Gettysburg by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kurtz, of Philadelphia, was the subject of discussion at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association in the high school building on Friday evening. The donors of the playground expect the town to take care of the place after they have fully equipped it, built a lodge for the superintendent, and so on. Estimates of the annual cost of maintaining the place run from $400 up to $700 or $800.

The entertainment part of the program consisted of a piano solo by Mrs. J. B. Baker, a recitation by Miss Lillian Kitzmiller, a vocal solo by Miss Reba Miller and a reading by Miss Ruth Hamilton.

THE PARTY

WILLY NILLY had taken all the other Puddle Muddlers aside and had told them the whole story about Chubby and how he had felt and now this matter was completely dropped.

"We'll have a party," he said, "in honor of our Chubby."

"Let's have a bonfire," said a little Jelly Bear, "and maybe we can roast some chestnuts."

"A splendid idea!" said Willy Nilly. Now all the Puddle Muddlers began gathering leaves while the bears gathered the nuts.

At last the leaves were piled high. Oh, it was going to be a huge and glorious bonfire! Willy Nilly started it off and they all sat around and ate roasted nuts and apples and laughed and chattered.

Then Rip ran to the Box That Held Things Just For Fun and brought forth his drum and gave Willy Nilly his little violin, the ducks their reed instruments and the bears some bugles to blow while Top Notch and Christopher marched around and sang in their cackling, cawing voices.

Sweet Pate bleated a soft, low baa-baa refrain to their music.

A quarter moon came up in the sky, the stars were out, the breeze soft and gentle, and even the pine tree of Christopher Columbus Crow joined in the evening's entertainment—singing and swaying ever so little but very sweetly.

"Do you know," said Willy Nilly, as they sat around the fire, "I've been promising a little girl named Estelle that I would tell her story of a rescued pigeon. She has sent me many messages about this tale, and tonight is a good night for story telling."

Tomorrow—"Estelle's Pigeon."

BRADY EXPLOITS
TOLD BY GUNMAN

Bangor, Me., Oct. 13 (AP).—Captain Frank Foley, of the Bangor police, said today James Dalhovey, wounded survivor of the G-men's ambush of the dread Al Brady gang, had confessed the band had slain three policemen.

Captain Foley said he heard the sulky prisoner, during an all-night questioning, admit to federal agents the gang had killed Richard Rivers, an Indianapolis police sergeant; Paul Minneman, an Indiana state trooper, and Policeman George Conn, Freeport, Ohio.

Dalhovey, his skull creased by a bullet, surrendered after a squad of federal sleuths shot and killed Al Brady, John Dillinger "successor," and the gang's youthful "trigger-man," Clarence Lee Shaffer, 21, Tuesday in a dramatic 5-minute gun battle on a Bangor street.

Foley said the captured gunman also accused Brady of "knocking off" a grocery clerk but said he did not know the victim's name or where the slaying occurred. G-men, however, have charged the gang with the death of Edward Lindsay, a Piqua, Ohio, grocery clerk.

HE DIDN'T TURN BACK!

I AM glad that Columbus Day is celebrated in many parts of North America. Outside Columbus' great achievement in discovering a new continent, he gave to the world a new inspiration. He did not turn back!

Columbus was beset by misgivings, perhaps. Certainly he was harassed by doubts—but these did not kill his faith. He had an idea. It was a goal to him. He would not allow it to leave him or to get past his forward vision. He wanted to find the new World upon which he had set his heart and risked all that he had.

He sailed on, and on—and on! There were those under his command who neither shared his enthusiasm nor his faith. They undoubtedly urged him to turn back, to forget such a foolish idea—that no man, up to that time, had proved feasible or sane. But Columbus sailed on. He did not turn back.

Columbus gained his end. A new world loomed upon the horizon and has gone forward ever since—endowed with the spirit and courage that led Columbus across uncharted seas. There have been setbacks to this new world. It has had bitter wars, failures, panics; and times that seemed so dark that many thought the light would never again appear. But the light always has come. The difficult times have always passed—and always will. This new world must not turn back.

The man who has lived—and apparently lost—though in his heart still undefeated, is the hero. He needs no cold, mute pile of stone to commemorate his memory. The very space that once knew him is glorified forever!

I wish I had room for that inspiring poem by Joaquin Miller called "Columbus." It should hang in every school room in the land. I can quote only the last stanza:

"Then, pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness. Ah, that night
Of all dark nights! And then a speck—
A light! a light! a light! a light!
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: 'On,' said on!"

TWO'S COMPANY

By MARGARET GUION HERZOG

The Characters

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair.

Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, has brought home a new husband.

Richard, Nina's stepfather, charming, poised, dark-haired, well-tailored and Honey's junior by 10 years.

David, a young auto salesman, met Nina at a party he crashed. He has copper hair and an engaging manner.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

Chapter Nine
A REVEALING FLASH

When Richard turned around and came over to them, his face was imperturbable.

Nina introduced him, and after a moment, the Hallidays continued on down.

Richard took Nina's arm. He began to chuckle softly. His chuckle was different from most people's . . . way down in the throat.

"So I'm the new heart throb, am I?" And even in the dusk she could see that his eyes were glowing. . . . with amusement probably.

She had to make an effort to answer lightly: "You hear everything. I never knew such a man. Well . . . are you flattered that they thought so?"

"Immeasurably. Nina. Immeasurably."

"I was just going to turn 'round.' But her legs kept right on walking ahead, just the same. 'I thought you were all tied up with that crowd at home?'"

"My dear child, when you left, the party became as a pricked balloon. It faded away, immediately. Honey is now prone, with a cold towel on her forehead, and a sodamint on her tongue. I knew I should overtake you."

Nina glanced at him. "You knew that the air would do you good."

"Er . . . yes."

His legs were not much longer than hers to make any difference in their strides. He was just under six feet, and Nina was tall—a good five feet seven. It was almost like dancing she thought, they were so—

Darkness came on all of a sudden, the way it does in the autumn, and they lit cigarettes and walked for some minutes in silence.

Nina began to feel an absurd light-headed feeling; and when they turned 'round finally, and faced the lights of 59th street glowing in the sky over the dark outlines of the trees—she had an even more absurd feeling that she would like to cry a little. Quite happily, of course . . . because what was there to cry over?

Just then Richard said: "Happy?" But she could not look at him. Quite without volition, she squeezed his arm up against her side, and he returned the pressure, keeping her close.

Adventure In Africa!

"Those lights . . . they're quite heartbreakingly beautiful, aren't they, Nina?"

She nodded.

"Lights in the darkness have a soft spot in my heart." He went on: "Once, in Africa, I got separated from my safari . . . wandered half the night through the dense underbrush, with nothing but my cigarette light and a pop light, to keep the beasts away . . . At first, I could only sense that something was following me; and then either my hearing became more acute, or my enemy more sure of himself, because I could hear an occasional tiny crackle . . . a branch snap back that I hadn't touched . . . I don't think I have ever responded to anything in my life, as I responded to the beauty of those camp lights twinkling out into the African night." He laughed. "I had reason to. The next morning, our lead boy bagged a huge black panther, not 500 feet from my tent."

The casual way he spoke of it, made the horror seem all the more vivid.

"Those snug little 59th street pinpoints must seem pretty pale in comparison."

"Oh I don't know. They mean home . . . and safety."

"You mention all these places in such an offhand manner. Richard. Budapest . . . Shanghai . . . What were you doing in Africa?"

"Oh, I had a place in Morocco once—with a friend." He looked amused at some memory.

Nina thought she would never get his life straight, and she wanted to . . . not for Honey's sake, or to get any clue about his character, but just—to know.

Sometimes when she had been a little girl, driving in the big open car with daddy, she had slipped a hand into the huge fur glove with his . . . and she had felt as though she were the same person as he. She wanted to feel that way now.

A something soft fell on to her face, and another. It was the first snow of the year.

"Look, Richard . . ."

But in a few minutes it had turned into rain.

"Wait a second," he told her, "I'll get a cab."

They paused under a street lamp, but though several passed, they were all occupied.

After a minute, two cars shot out of the side street on a green light. The sedan turned south, but the empty taxi headed north, across the way. Richard whistled, stepped off the curb waving his stick . . . just as he did so, the driver of the second car changed his mind and wheeled about drunkenly.

Richard, with his back turned, stood directly in the car's path.

The sedan, overloaded with young people, careened madly—evidently quite out of control. Nina called out something, frantically, and Richard jumped to one side in time. The fender missed him by a bare two inches.

He was safe, but Nina stood there trembling.

In the fraction of a second that she had watched him in danger of his life, a revealing flash had come to her . . . and she was frightened still. Terribly.

"Nina . . ."

He hurried over to her, saw that the tears were brimming over on to her white cheeks, and put his arm around her.

"I'm all right, my dear . . ."

But it wasn't that.

When she had seen him standing there, right in the path of the oncoming car, she hadn't called a warning . . . or his name . . . She had cried out: "Darling!"

Nina knew now that she loved him.

Just A Silly Girl

On Thanksgiving evening, Nina left the Fenwick's dinner-party as early as she decently could. Honey was a confirmed stay-out-late-er and Nina wanted to be in bed when they got home.

She chose to play backgammon, rather than bridge, because it was easier to break up one person's game than three. And she chose to play with Tom Halliday, Betty's brother, because he was so easy to handle.

Tom was a nice, ugly, boyish person, whose every remark you could predict. If you said it was a grand party, he would say, yes, it had been grand ever since you came. In other words, you knew where you stood with him. He could be counted on, which was something.

He was one of the people who had asked Nina where she had been all his life, the first time he met her. He was pretty crazy for her, poor Tom.

After four games, she stopped without compunction. Tom was so delighted to have had her choose him, in the first place, that his evening was made any way.

Nina bade him good night on her shivery, 74th street stoop, and couldn't get up to her room fast enough.

She made ready for the night, refusing to think. She concentrated on creams and lotions, and only let herself go when the lights were out, and she was in bed.

Nina was in the first stages of a series of emotional reactions to Richard.

In this present stage, she sought to convince herself that she wasn't really in love with him, at all. Physically attracted, yes. But not in love.

Nina had a good mind, and a pretty fair smattering of psychology. In a flutter, excited state . . . quite out of keeping with her deliberate calculations . . . she began to count up on her fingers, all her past loves.

There! You see? by this method, she told herself, she had explained everything. That 18-year-old St. Paul senior; those two Yale boys—Tony and Frank; that good-looking golfer, who won the cup at Mid-Ocean, in Bermuda; that crazy Vanderpool kid, last winter . . . all young, immature creatures, besides whom Richard Challoner was the very embodiment of sophistication. The fact that her stepfather would have made many of the current men-about-town seem decidedly bucolic, only added weight to her argument.

It was decided then. She was not in love with him, merely flattered. So there was nothing to bite her fingernails about, or leave over. She was just a silly girl.

She was just about to curl up in a ball, like a kitten, and go to sleep, with a great load off her mind, when she thought of something.

Lord! Had Richard heard her when she called out "Darling," so frantically? Had he suspected her childish infatuation?

More cogitating.

Then—no. She thought not. Everybody was "darling" in his indiscriminate age, and besides, he had acted quite naturally on the ride home.

Everything had been settled too conveniently. Nina curled up in a ball, for the second time, and this time she went to sleep.

David, gay and ridiculous, comes for cocktails with Nina, tomorrow.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks lunk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more laxative movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else, 25c.

ROOSEVELT HITS
ALOOFNESS AS INSURING PEACE

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt's renewed plea for active steps to preserve peace was interpreted by many observers today as designed to quiet criticism that his policy of international co-operation might lead to war.

Declaring in his radio speech Tuesday night that the mere refusal to recognize war in other parts of the world does not guarantee this country's "aloofness" from conflict, he said:

"In a world of mutual suspicions, peace must be affirmatively reached for. It cannot just be wished for. It cannot just be waited for."

Thus, the President prefaced a formal announcement of the United States' intention to participate in the forthcoming nine-power treaty conference on the Sino-Japanese conflict.

He added significantly, recalling his service as wartime assistant secretary of the navy:

"Remember that from 1913 to 1921, I was fairly close to world events and in that period, while I learned much of what to do, I also learned much of what not to do."

To many observers, this appeared to be an expression of an intention to pursue a moderate course in foreign affairs.

Some members of Congress, peace organizations and others had expressed concern after Mr. Roosevelt's Chicago speech last week that

MARGIOTTI HAS OWN PLAN FOR PAROLE SYSTEM

Harrisburg, Oct. 13 (AP).—Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, "went to bat" today for the parole idea in Pennsylvania.

"I believe in reform and not abolition of the parole system," the attorney general declared in proposing a revolutionary plan for the system.

"All but life prisoners eventually will get out anyway and the question is whether to keep them in after their minimum sentences have been served. Some will feel aggrieved and that isn't conducive to good behavior or rehabilitation."

Governor Earle suggested recently that a crime commission be appointed to study whether the parole system should be done away with.

Margiotti laid down this plan: Creation of a parole board, consisting of a psychiatrist, a social worker, a business man, a former judge and a penologist, which would take over consideration of all applications for parole. Local courts would be deprived of the power they now hold.

"The big advantage of this would be uniformity of policy," Margiotti declared.

"Now we have judges granting paroles in one section who may be lenient, and in another, they may be strict. The trouble is that there are too many avenues of parole."

These "avenues," he said, were: Application to the pardon board, of which Margiotti is a member. The county courts. The trustees of correctional institutions.

Of the latter, Margiotti said: "Such was the Meyer case." Alexander Meyer, paroled from the Pennsylvania Industrial school, attacked and slew a young girl. He was executed.

Companionate Marriage Old Stuff to Japan

Tokyo (AP).—Recent discoveries by Dr. Takeo Minamoto, Japanese scholar, indicate that a custom resembling companionate marriage was practiced in Japan hundreds of years before the expression even was current elsewhere.

In Japan the custom is known as the "visiting bridegroom" system.

It is still practiced on the island of Chigien, the Miyako Archipelago, in Southern Japan. Dr. Minamoto said. When a Chigien youth decides to marry, he buys some rice wine and accompanied by his closest friends goes to see the girl's parents. His proposal is to them, not to her.

If the parents approve he becomes, forthwith, the girl's husband. There is no other ceremony.

But she continues to live in her father's home as an unmarried woman. He works and lives as a single man. He visits her when his fancy dictates, is a visiting bridegroom. Custom requires that he devote half his income to her support, whether or not there are children.

Later, perhaps years later, husband, wife and children may establish their own home formally. They usually do. But, the scholar said, it is not uncommon to find twenty or thirty persons living under the same roof, in cases where several daughters have been married to "visiting bridegrooms."
